LEONARD SALZMANN ON CHARITY BOARD

Leonard Salzmänn succeeds Wesley Waterbury—William H. Van Eiten Remains on Public Works Board.

Mayor Walter P. Crane announced today that J. Leonard Salzmänn would succeed Wesley Waterbury as a member of the charity board the first of the year, at which time Mr. Waterbury's term expires. Mr. Waterbury informed Mayor Crane that he did not care to be reappointed as he did not feel that he could devote the time to the office. During the time Mr. Waterbury was on the board as its president he has proved a most capable and efficient member.

County Treasurer-elect William H. Van Eiten, whose term as a member of the board of public works expires the first of the year, has accepted reappointment on that board.

TWO WOMEN SEEK MAN'S INSURANCE

Honora Clare, as administratrix, brought an action in the Supreme court against the Prudential Insurance Company, claiming some $500 insurance on the life of Felix Clare. The insurance company was ready and willing to pay the claim but Mrs. Cecelia B. O'Reilly also made a claim for the money. Judge Fowler, in the application of William D. and William D. Drinnier, Jr., granted an order to show cause why the company should not be permitted to pay the money into court and that Mrs. Cecelia B. O'Reilly be substituted in place and stead of the insurance company. The order to show cause was argued before Judge Rosch recently at special term and he has just handed down a decision permitting the insurance company to pay the money into court, and upon such payment, the said company to be relieved of any further liability, leaving the question as to who is entitled to the money to be litigated between Mrs. Honora Clare as administratrix of her husband's estate and Cecelia B. O'Reilly. Newton H. Fessenden represents Mrs. Clare and John M. Cashin represents Mrs. O'Reilly.

BIBLE CLASS GIVES $100 TO REV. AND MRS. CRANSTON

Superintendent Receives Handsome Basket of Flowers From Sunday School.

The Clinton Avenue M. E. Sunday school added another bright star to its long list of events Wednesday evening when the annual Christmas exercises were held. The children who took part in the program were at their best and the result was one of the finest programs ever given.

The exercises consisted of recitations, class pieces, drills, quartets, solos and songs by the school. The church was filled to capacity and additional chairs had to be brought in to seat the friends of the children. After the regular program was completed Santa Claus made his appearance and distributed presents to the primary department and also a number of gifts to the teachers and scholars. Candy was given to the primary and beginners' departments.

One of the surprises of the evening came when the Rev. and Mrs. Cranston were called to the front and presented with a purse of gold amounting to $100, a gift from The Winners' Bible class. The superintendent was presented with a very handsome and elaborate basket of flowers, a gift from the entire school.

The church had been very handsomely decorated with green, Christmas wreaths and poinsettias, and the Christmas tree which extended from the floor to the high ceiling made a very pretty background. A collection which amounted to over $100 was taken up for the children of the world.

FLEISCHMANN'S WOMAN DIED WHILE DANCING

WIND MAKES WAVES 75 FEET HIGH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Dec. 28.—Fourteen additional lives have been lost in storms that were sweeping the North Atlantic and North Sea today. The death list since the storm began is put at more than two score.

A Central News despatch from Hamburg reported the loss of a German naval salvage steamer near Kiel. The vessel foundered with the loss of all of her crew—12 men. The steamer Haimon, of Baltimore, arrived at Plymouth today en route for Germany badly battered by storms that had swept her all the way across the Atlantic. An English passenger was killed.

An officer of the British steamship Noctfield was killed while the vessel was on route for German ports. A number of small fishing vessels were wrecked.

Mariners touching at British, French and German ports say that the gales are the worst in forty years. The wind reached a velocity of more than 100 miles an hour, rolling up waves 75 feet high. All the trans-Atlantic liners are overdue.

RUTGERS CONCERT FRIDAY NIGHT

Program Will Consist of Numbers of Varied Types, Classical and Popular, Furnishing Interest For All.

A concert will be given Friday night in the high school auditorium by the Rutgers musical clubs. There are two clubs, the glee club and the instrumental club, all students of Rutgers College. These fellows have appeared in many different places previous to this time, including a performance at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city. The crowds they have attracted are mostly the music lovers, people who enjoy good music, and from reports of the press those who heard them were more than pleased. The fame of these fellows seems to go before them, for the senior class has had over fifty requests for tickets from people in the outlying towns of this section with a promise to sell more if they were sent.

The program will consist of numbers of varied types, some classical, some popular, thus making it interesting for people of different tastes for music. Those who have heard the college musical clubs that have appeared here before have realized the value of the program. The Rutgers club is of practically the same type as those who have appeared here before, but there are more of them, there being some fifty students in both clubs.

For the past two weeks the members of the senior class have been working faithfully to put this thing across, and they feel that they deserve the co-operation of not only the people connected with the school, but of all the music lovers of the city. Those who have not yet been able to obtain tickets may still get them from members of the senior class or at the door tomorrow night. The entertainment starts at 8 o'clock.

DOINGS AT "Y" DURING VACATION

These two weeks of vacation will certainly prove a good time for the members of the boys' department of the local "Y," for in addition to the regular work many special features have been arranged. Tuesday and Wednesday a bowling tournament was held, the winning names to appear soon. The physical tests have been completed. This morning the boys left for a hike.

Due to the illness of Mr. Hall, the meeting of the "Y" cabinet was postponed and members are urged to watch the press closely for further notices about the next meeting.

Friday night a social will be held, the attendance at which all the grammar school students is requested. The entertainment will be given by members of Second Dutch Church. These people have given some very good entertainments in the past and this one promises to be as good as any previously given, if not better. After the entertainment refreshments will be served.

Friday and Saturday will be given to the work.

Next Monday, New Year's Day, will be an open house, specific arrangements to be announced later.

Next week will be State Boys' Week, during which time the boys' cabinet will act on the work of the "$50,000 Club."

LITTLE INTEREST IN CITY BUDGET

Public Evidently Satisfied With Administration's Efforts To Reduce City Taxes—Tax Rate $32.60 per Thousand.

The public hearing by Mayor Walter P. Crane on the proposed city budget for 1923 was held Wednesday evening at the city hall and was only attended by the Mayor and a few city officials. The fact that no citizens were present would appear to be an indication that the public is satisfied the present administration is using every effort to reduce the city tax rate.

None of the aldermen was present at the hearing, but that was due to the fact that the mayor held an informal meeting with the aldermen last week at which time the budget was discussed and approved. The budget calls for an appropriation of $649,550.08, which fixed the tax rate at $32.60 per thousand valuation.

The budget will come up for formal adoption at the January meeting of the common council.

CHANGE IN LAW WOULD STIMULATE PERJURY

The legal research committee of the commonwealth fund of the states of Massachusetts and Connecticut, have addressed a questionnaire to a number of lawyers of the country, asking their opinion whether the declaration of a deceased person shall not be admissible in evidence if the court finds that it was made in good faith before the commencement of the action, and upon the personal knowledge of the declarant, regardless of the fact whether the person offering to testify is interested in the cause of action or not, or whether transactions between the witness and the deceased person was a personal transaction or not. To this Judge Clearwater has replied:

"Apparently this questionnaire contemplates a modification of the provisions of Section 347 of the Civil Practice Act of the State of New York. (Formerly Section 529 of the Code of Civil Procedure). I am averse to any relaxation of the rule which it embodies in that any lessening of its inhibition not only would tend to encourage perjury, but would stimulate its production."

OFFICERS FROM SENECA ARRIVE FOR CHAMPION

Sheriff Bert E. Smalley of Seneca county arrived in town today with the necessary papers and took back with him George Champion, who was arrested at Phoenicia Tuesday on information supplied by the Seneca county authorities. Shortly afterward Chester Scott, who works at the R-G-R store, came along and lifted Gibbons out of the gutter and placed him in the doorway of No. 110 North Front street, and called up the police headquarters for the ambulance, and Gibbons was removed to the hospital.

NO ALIMONY FOR MRS. JAGGER

In the action of Carrie Leece Jagger against Frank A. Jagger, which was argued before Judge Rosch recently, when a motion was made by Frank W. Brooks, as attorney for Mrs. Jagger, for alimony and counsel fee against Frank A. Jagger alimony has been denied and a counsel fee of $50 granted. This is the marriage which was consummated through a matrimonial agency. After living with Mr. Jagger a few days Mrs. Jagger returned to her southern home, William D. and William D. ALUMNI REUNION IS BIG SUCCESS

Wednesday evening, the annual mid-year dance and reunion of the Kingston High School Alumni Association was held in St. Mary's Hall. Some hundred and fifty couples, attended the affair, which proved a gala event from beginning to end. The room was very artistically decorated with red and green streamers, hung from the lights and sprigs of evergreen strung along the ends of the room. Balle's orchestra supplied the music. During a short intermission dainty refreshments were served. After this intermission dancing was resumed until some time after twelve.

WOODROW WILSON IS 66 YEARS OLD

Ex-President Spent Birthday Quietly In His Washington Home—Health Much Improved—May Lead Party Again.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Woodrow Wilson celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday today. He spent a part of the morning in the study of his quiet home in S street perusing the newspapers and the Congressional Record and their accounts of the stormy debate in the United States senate over America's duty to Europe. He found them strangely reminiscent of the papers of three years ago when the League of Nations debate cracked and spluttered in the senate from opening gavel to close of business.

It was stated today by those who have seen Mr. Wilson this week that he is enjoying his present situation in the senate—particularly the spectacle of an old irreconcilable like Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, leading the fight for greater American participation in European affairs.

Mr. Wilson is in better health and in better spirits than at any time since he began his grim battle to "come back" from the near fatal illness that struck him down three years ago.

He maintains the slow but steady progress toward his old mental and physical vigor he will be fully capable of exercising the tactical leadership of his party as a whole—and more regular to occupy the attention of Democrats of all factions in Washington.

Recently there were rumors that he had ventured into the street for strolls, but these reports were untrue. Not since he entered the S. street house on March 4, 1921, has Mr. Wilson ventured beyond its confines except for the usual afternoon motor ride about the environs of the capital.

While his friends are elated over his physical progress, they are even more elated over his mental vigor. He is described as a "voracious reader" of newspapers, magazines, and books bearing on world affairs.

Every morning he devotes himself to his mail, increasingly heavy since the November elections. The mail is usually so large that it would be physically impossible for him to answer it all, but he selects a large number of missives each day for personal reply. Sometimes he dictates to his secretary; other times he "pecks" out the replies himself on his typewriter—a practice begun in his university days and continued in the White House.

Late this afternoon there will be a small pilgrimage to the Wilson home, led by Hamilton Holt, Ralph Stephen S. Wise and others associated with them in promoting the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

This call, the flood of messages and gifts, and a special birthday dinner, planned by Mrs. Wilson, were all today that marked the passage of another year in Woodrow Wilson's life.

STATE IN GRIP OF SNOW AND SLEET

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Dec. 28.—Telephone and telegraph officials fear damage to wires if the heavy wet snow, which is general throughout the eastern and northern part of the state, continues throughout the day.

Snow at Rochester.

Rochester, Dec. 28.—Five inches of snow had fallen to 11 o'clock today in a storm which began early last night.

Little difficulty was experienced in transportation by rail and trolley lines expected and prepared to meet any emergency a continued fall of snow might bring.

Wires Down at Syracuse.

Syracuse, Dec. 28.—Railroad and trolley schedules were disrupted. Wires were down in several instances from the weight of ice and the Oneida Lake cut-off of the Barge Canal was closed to navigation today, in one of the worst sleet storms of the winter.

DOWNTOWN P. O. SITE NOT POPULAR

Business Men Displeased With Proposal to Locate in West Strand Store—Wants it Left as it is or Placed on Corner.

Information has been received in Kingston that the report of the post office inspector on a new site for the Roundout station favors the little room in the Mansion House building on West Strand.

If this is selected as the site for the new office it will not meet with the approval of the merchants of the downtown business section. They favor either having the post office remain where it is or locating it in the store in the Mansion House facing Broadway, and not the proposed site around the corner.

The proposed new site seems to displease everybody because it is off the main business street, obscurely located and difficult for strangers to find. It is expected that a strong protest will be formally made.

Each piece of furniture in the exhibit will be branded with the "Triple Guarantee" trade mark of the association, which is an assurance that the furniture has not only been built to last but is designed correctly. It has been given. Moreover, in creating a standard of excellence for the World War debt funding time throughout the country, at the same prices, by all authorized exhibitors. The restrictions of franchisees to dealers in each community will automatically limit the number of sets or pieces of any one design.

The Home Furnishing Styles Association is composed of an independent group of trained experts who because of their freedom from commercial affiliation are able to exert absolute control over Triple Guarantee models, thus rendering them exclusive.

It is expected that these monthly exhibitions will be displayed in settings approximating as closely as possible actual home interiors, and those interested will be able to study the various pieces to the best advantage but will discover in the settings themselves many clever ideas and suggestions which can be adapted for their own use.

The activities of the association include a monthly magazine known as "Home Furnishing Styles." This book is filled with interesting and instructive articles and illustrations. Copies are on display at Gregory & Company and will aid considerably in suggesting ideas to the home lover.

The association also conducts a home beautifying service that will help the public in most any problem of decorating the home. This is conducted without charge and is extended to the public through Gregory & Co., the authorized dealer here.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE BIG DROPS

There had been some doubt as to what Old Man Weather would do. He was really rather uncertain about it himself. But at last he had decided and Mr. Sun had decided that it would be a nice day.

"Of course," said Mr. Sun, "if I want to go behind a cloud for a little wee nap—forty winks, as the people say—I would like it if the King of the Clouds would take my place perhaps."

"Having Their Chat." "That would make things jollier somehow. An overcast sky isn't nearly so jolly as a good shower!"

So the King of the Clouds had agreed. "If you're only going to take a little bit of a nap," said the King of the Clouds, "I won't speak to the Army of Raindrops about it."

"Nor will I speak to the Mist grandchildren, nor to their nurse, Nurse Fog."

"Oh, no," said Mr. Sun, "don't do that. I wouldn't want to rest for more than a few moments."

"Then," said the King of the Clouds, "I think I will tell my lovely grown-up daughters, the Big Drops, that they might have a gay frolic."

"Yes, they'd be just the ones."

"The very ones," agreed Mr. Sun. Now while Mr. Sun and the King of the Clouds had been talking, the people had felt a little nervous.

"It may rain after all," they said. "But then Mr. Sun came out so fine and strong and everyone decided that it wouldn't rain."

Mr. Sun and the King of the Clouds had been having their chat and talking and thinking about a part of the country where it was warm even in the winter time and where the people went on picnics.

That was one of the reasons why everyone was so anxious about the sun, for it was a holiday and everyone wanted to have a good time.

So all started on their picnics and such fine times as they had.

Oh, it was nice to eat out-of-doors and some of them became quite burned by Mr. Sun as they sat under him.

He made the letter V on some necks, showing he could make his letters as well as anybody!

But toward afternoon he remembered about his nap.

Yes, a very short nap would do him good. And the King of the Clouds had promised to take his place.

He had promised that some members of his family would be present—his lovely daughters.

So Mr. Sun stretched himself upon his cloud couch, behind a big dark cloud and the people all put wraps around them, so they would not get wet, for they were afraid it would storm.

And then came along the King of the Clouds' grown-up daughters, the Big Drops.

They had all married Prince Showers, and they were very happy.

The Prince Showers had magnificent dark capes about their shoulders, and they looked very handsomely dressed in purple and a curious shade of blue, with touches of an odd color of yellow.

Then the rain drops began. The Big Drops danced here and there and their husbands, the Shower Princes, were with them.

"Oh," said some one, "I don't believe it will be much of a shower, because the drops are so big."

"And whenever there are big drops the shower is only a little one. I've always found that to be the case."

For no one knew that the Big Drops were really the daughters of the King of the Clouds and that they agreed so perfectly with their princely husbands, and their princely husbands agreed so perfectly with them that that was why they did just as they did.

But it was right about the sudden shower with the big drops. It lasted but a very short time and no one got wet. The coats and sweaters they had taken to the picnic with them had been enough, and it really added to the excitement of the day. So, although the Big Drops and the Shower Princes had not been invited to the picnics, they had not been rude uninvited guests.

One Worry Postponed. "Wonder why it is customary to have weddings in June?"

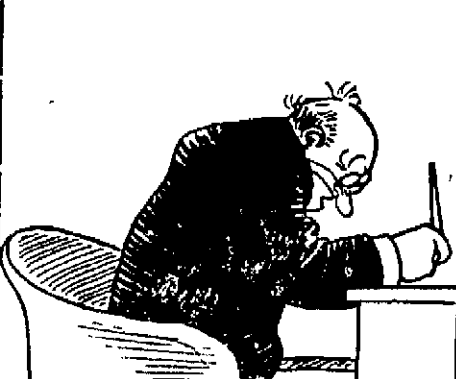

"So that the young couple won't have the coal problem to start off with, I suppose."

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

A meat loaf is enjoyed once in a while and the following is a good way to serve one.
Creole Loaf.—Take one and one-half pounds of meat, pork and beef mixed, one good-sized onion, chopped, salt and pepper, and one cupful of cooked oatmeal, make into a loaf, adding a cupful of tomato. Place in a baking pan and pour over the loaf another cupful of tomato and one-half of a chopped onion. Bake, basting often. Thicken the gravy to serve with the meat. Bake about one-half hour in a moderate oven.

Tongue on Toast.—This makes a nice breakfast dish and utilizes the rough pieces of boiled tongue. Mince the tongue, adding a bit of onion, juice, nutmeg, salt and pepper and chopped green pepper—a tablespoonful of the latter is sufficient. Prepare a rich white sauce using half of the quantity of liquid of the broth that the tongue was cooked in, and half of milk, cook with two tablespoonfuls of flour and butter well blended, or sweet cream may be used, omitting the flour and butter; add the tongue and pour over squares of buttered toast. Serve hot.

Gateau a la Africaine.—Beat three eggs, add three quarters of a cupful of sugar and the same of flour. To the beaten yolks add the sugar, beat well, then add the beaten whites and the flour, stirring lightly. Flavor and bake in patty pans. When cool remove the centers, fill with whipped cream slightly sweetened and flavored and put together in pairs. Cover with chocolate icing.

Sally Lunn.—Mix at night, one cupful of milk, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, four cupfuls of flour and one half cupful of good yeast. Cover closely and put to rise, giving plenty of room for its rise. In the morning beat well, turn into a greased mold and bake after rising for half an hour in a moderate oven. This makes a delicious breakfast bread.

"Pied Piper" Historic Personage. Browning's famous poem, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," is reputed to have a historic basis. According to an old chronicler the affair happened, very much as described by Browning, at the town of Hamelin, in Brunswick, on June 26, 1254. There came to the town "an odd kind of companion," who, for the fantastical coat which he wore, was called Pied Piper. He offered to clear the town of rats for a certain sum, accomplished his task, was refused his just payment and, in revenge, piped the children out of the town, just as he had done the rats, and led them into an opening in a hillside, whence none ever returned. The street through which the piper conducted his victims was Bunzen, and from that day to this no music is ever allowed to be played in this particular street. The old story was brought to the poet's notice by his father, who himself wrote an amusing poem on the subject.

KU KLUXED LEGISLATION.

According to Washington dispatches, Dr. W. H. Evans, "Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan," has "virtually confirmed" the report that his visit to the Capital is "to lay the ground work for an ambitious scheme seeking ultimate control of national legislation." The Imperial Wizard is quoted as saying that the Klan aims so to saturate the country with its spirit that "we can expect intelligent legislation from the Congress of the United States." This declaration of purpose, says the dispatch, "produced frank amazement among officials to whom it was referred and was accepted as a definite challenge meaning that the Klan openly confesses its intention of thrusting its influence into Congress."

The only surprising feature in all this is the "amazement" among officials. Similar announcements of Klan aims have been made before, and in preparing to plant a powerful lobby in Washington the Ku-Kluxers are merely following the fashion set by other self-seeking or reform lobbies said to number about 150. Congress is used to being charged with lack of "intelligent legislation," to having outside influence thrust into it, to the assumption that it needs wise direction if it is not to be controlled from without. And the interests thus operating upon the national legislature from without have been, according to report, more or less successful in their undertakings. A few months ago the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals even announced its intention to erect a handsome building "facing the Capitol" in Washington, whence "the closest watch will be kept upon Congress" in the interests of "moral legislation"—a "headquarters which will command the attention and respect of the whole civilized world." That the Ku Klux Klan, with its announced aims and nationwide expansion, will be content to undertake a less ambitious program is hardly to be expected.

DEMOCRATIC RULE.

Democratic rule and law and order do not seem to go hand in hand these days, if we are to believe some prominent Democratic newspapers. Here is the New York World, for instance, publishing a cartoon which pictures citizens of New York going about in armored cars, hiding in the subways or plunging down manholes in order to escape gun men and other bandits. New York city is one of the strongest Democratic cities in the Union, and Mayor J. J. Van Houten is probably as able a mayor as the Democratic party has produced—which is not necessarily saying very much. But it might be well for the Democratic New York World to suggest to the people of its city that if they do not like a reign of banditry they might try a Republican city administration for a while. The Atlanta Constitution, published in a Democratic stronghold, heads one of its editorials "Back to Bandit Days" and says that decent, law-abiding and law-respecting citizens "will be compelled to take the field as vigilantes and personally go to grips with the crime situation unless the constituted legal authorities demonstrate their willingness and ability to enforce the law." A test of Republican administration might not be a bad thing in the south, either.

The astronomers report the rate spectacle of three comets in view at one time, but unfortunately they are all too distant to be seen except through powerful telescopes.

That "bourgeois delusion," Santa Claus, bears a charmed life and notwithstanding the sentence of death passed upon him by the Russian Soviets he is likely to continue his Christmas Eve rounds indefinitely.

New Zealand has defeated prohibition by a majority more than five times as great as the majority against it three years ago. The "hostile attitude of labor" is said to have had much to do with the result.

La Follette is reported to be bent on doing to the Republican party in 1924 what Theodore Roosevelt did to it in 1912. He may get into trouble early in the game, however, because he plans to unite the rural and city sons of toil. Nobody has ever yet driven the farmers and the Federation of Labor in one harness, and it looks as if the man to do it must learn how to mix water and oil.

It is said to have been the boast of Einstein that only ten men besides himself understood his theory of relativity, yet we hear that the enterprising movie man has put this puzzle in super-mathematics on the screen for the delectation of the millions of movie fans. It would be funny if all these latter should promptly boast of understanding Dr. Einstein, for in that case what would become of a fame largely based on the inability of all but a literal "upper ten" to see the point?

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Does the Baltimore Oriole begin singing as soon as he comes North?

The full song with any bird is a feature of courting, and begins when the females arrive north. The Baltimore Oriole has a rather low, whining or crooning note which he sounds frequently or continuously in the early part of his sojourn. This is replaced by the full rich whistle characteristic of oriole music as soon as the male begins courting a mate.

2. Why are there no earthworms in some parts of the west?

We can't say why—the fact is that these worms do not extend their area to all parts of the country. Some birds and some animals keep to certain ranges and do not penetrate others. The attractions of a given habitat probably influence this, and it may be that the earthworms do not find the home and food they like in the soil that is free of them. The bobolink is an illustration of how changing food conditions may affect habitat, for since the irrigation of certain parts of the west for rice fields, bobolinks nest in sections where previously they were unknown.

3. How many muskrats are there in a litter and how are they fed?

Six to eight per litter and occasionally two litters a year, the latter point influenced by favorable conditions of food and weather. Muskrats are mammals and like all that form of life, suckle their young.

WITHOUT FORM BUT NOT VOID

Was the Rotary Club Luncheon on Wednesday at Which There Was a Large Attendance, Several Visitors and Some New Songs.

Without a regular program or speaker, the Rotary Club managed to hold a meeting on Wednesday that, when the returns are all in, will show at least 98 per cent attendance and possibly 100 per cent. Final plans for entertainment the Boys' Club at the annual turkey dinner this evening were announced. W. Davis Hawk, who made his first appearance since being injured several weeks ago, was enthusiastically welcomed, and a number of visitors were in attendance, among them Harry Elmen-dorf of Rutland, Vt., a former Kingstonian, who is now organist in a large church in Rutland, Bert Mason of Claremont, W. Va., Ernest Kendall of Newburgh and George Beckwith of Abilene, N. Y., formerly connected with the Kingston Y. M. C. A. The chairman of the entertainment committee, acting as Santa Claus, presented several members with assignments to speak at future luncheons. Two wonderfully affecting Anti-Saloon League anthems were sung and the meeting closed with "Pack Up Your Troubles" as the doxology.

WHY

The Earth May Well Be Compared to an Onion

Did it ever occur to you that the earth on which we live is composed of layers like an onion? In the center we have a vast mass at a temperature of at least 2,000 degrees centigrade, yet, owing to the enormous compression, not fluid. That is the nucleus on which rests what is called the textosphere, a layer of material which, not being so compressed as the central core, is almost fluid.

Upon this floats the lithosphere—that is, the thin and more or less solid shell upon which we live. It is very thin compared with the great hot center, being only between 20 and 30 miles in thickness, and some of the greatest modern scientists believe that the continents literally float upon the fiery sea below, like icebergs upon an ocean.

The fourth skin is the hydrosphere—that is the world's oceans. Sixty-two per cent of the world's oceans exceed 2,000 fathoms in depth, and the sea as a whole has an average depth of two geographic miles.

Above this, again, comes the atmosphere, which may be about a hundred miles in thickness, or perhaps more, for it is now believed that, above the air which we breathe, there is a great space filled, first with hydrogen in a very rarefied state, and above that again, with coronium, a gas which exists in the sun, but not on the earth's surface.

With all these different spheres it is curious to consider that the zone in which mankind can live is only about four miles in thickness. Below that we should be burned alive, above it there is no air for our lungs.

HAVE OWN TOILET REQUISITES

How Some Feathered Creatures Are Enabled to Maintain Wonderfully Glossy Appearance.

It is generally known that there are a number of birds who possess a natural supply of toilet requisites.

The duck, for example, obtains the wonderfully glossy appearance of its feathers by means of a private store of "brilliantine" which it possesses. This curious oily liquid is stored in a small gland under the roots of its tail, and when, as so often happens, a duck rubs its head under its tail it is really just giving itself a thorough treatment with its own special hair-oil.

There are some birds, also, who are provided with a comb. Barn-owls are among the British birds that have this appliance. It is situated on the inner edge of one of their claws, and they use it, principally, to rid their feathers of some of the parasites with which they are so often infected.

Then there are birds who have their own powder-puffs. The English pigeons and the hawks are examples of these. The powder is made by certain small feathers which, as they grow in size, tend to become brittle and to crumble into a fine white powder, which the birds use to obtain a gloss on their feathers.

How African Women Store Water. The strangest people in the world, according to Mrs. Harry Kaigh Eustace, are the women of the bush tribe in the Gordonia desert, central south-west Africa. These women, she says, have developed glands in the back in which they store water like camels.

When they drink a great deal of water the glands make them appear deformed. After a few days in the desert with little or no water, their reserve supply is absorbed and they look normal. They can go without water longer than a camel.

Mrs. Eustace, whose husband is a big game hunter, is English, and has spent twelve years in Africa shooting big game with the camera and gun. She is preparing for her ninth expedition.

How Stumps Are Burned Out.

Effective and speedy destruction of stumps is obtained through the use of a new incinerating outfit consisting of a blower driven by a gasoline engine, and a sheet iron jacket which is placed over the stump to be destroyed. When the apparatus has been put in position, a fire is started at the base of the stump, and is steadily fanned with the engine-driven air blast until the wood is entirely reduced to ashes. The apparatus is safe, simple, labor-saving, inexpensive to operate, and does a neat job. If desired and practicable, a blower with sufficient capacity to supply several jackets with blasts may be utilized, making it possible to burn several stumps at one time.

Why He Wouldn't Come Up. Sambo and Pompey went house robbing and Pompey wrapped around his body beneath his waistcoat and jacket half a dozen yards of lead piping. In trying to board a Mississippi steamer which was just leaving the dock, he jumped, missed and fell into the river.

"Get a boat hook, some of you!" yelled the captain of the steamer. "A man's overboard. He's bound to come up three times."

Up dashed Sambo. "Capen, I bet yer a tenner he deen come up once!"

Hawaii Has Many Rainbows. Hawaii is a country of rainbows, believed by the natives of olden days to be omens of good. Scarcely twenty-four hours pass without one or more of the celestial arches appearing above Honolulu. Recently three rainbows in a row linked together at their bases are said to have appeared over Honolulu.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Meeting of the Wallkill Mfg. Co. will be held at the office of the Company, Wallkill, N. Most of the people who keep on expecting the worst fail utterly to grasp the significance of the present.

I ain't never doubted Pa's love

Aunt Het, but I know enough concerning the carnal nature of men folks to thank God I'm a good cook.

Don't Cry, Little Girl.
There, little girl, don't cry.
They have lengthened your skirts, I know.
But don't you fret.
You're a lot's way yet.
From the girls of the long ago.

They have added an inch or two,
But there, little girl, don't cry.
For a frisky breeze
Still shows your knees,
As the race of men go by.

Leaders are ordinary persons with extraordinary determination.

The public is the one big political boss of this great country.

Why do they say a bride is "led" to the altar? Did you ever see a bride pulling back?

The Quality of Mercy.
"Dearest, I must marry you."
"Have you seen father?"
"Often, honey, but I love you just the same."

The Wicked Worm.
Cuthbert had been listening for half an hour to a lecture from his father on the evils of late nights and late risings in the morning.
You will never amount to anything, said the father, "unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember, it's the early bird that catches the worm."

"Ha, Ha!" laughed Cuthbert.
"How about the worm? What did he get for turning out so early?"
"My son," replied the father,
"that worm hadn't been to bed all night; he was on his way home."

Personally we have an idea that the longer skirts won't be much worn until some of the shorter ones are worn out.

"HEARTS AFLAME" FIRST SHOWN HERE

New Super-production Will Get Premier Screen Production In Kingston Before Going to New York.

"From Kingston to Broadway" is Louis B. Mayer's slogan for the coming New Year, and to inaugurate his campaign this Hollywood showman is going to present to Kingstonians a suitable New Year's greeting in the form of a Reginald Barker super-production, "Hearts Afflame," to be shown at the Kingston Opera House for three days, beginning Thursday, January 4, before showing it to a Broadway audience.

Mr. Mayer, who was in town yesterday, said:

The industry for 1923 points to its most successful period since its infancy. Now, you take for instance my showing of "Hearts Afflame" at your Opera House when the biggest houses in the biggest cities are beginning to attend the opening night performance, just scatter themselves through the house, and from the mouths of Kingstonians, voices of approval of a title, a scene, a thrill or an actor or actress, or showing their disapproval of the same—will hence the future of the production. We must have the public's angle of a production, a cosmopolitan audience such as the usual capacity of the opera house holds, a clean, disinterested audience that will tell us honestly what the picture is worth.

"On the fire scene alone, we spent months around Banff, British Columbia, injured five of our workmen, set a county on fire by soaking huge tracts of timberland with gasoline so that we could 'shoot' at night, dammed a river and then dynamited, burned Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Keenan and Craig Ward so badly in that forest fire inferno that they were laid up for weeks—swathed in bandages, and for a week the doctors held out slight hope that Miss Nilsson was not permanently disfigured. We had twenty camera men shooting from every angle, had four of the cameras explode with the heat and flames and lost one of the finest chaps in the river gone mad with log.

On next Thursday night "Hearts Afflame" will have its world's premiere—the first showing on any screen—and among the city officials who have been invited are Mayor Crane, Fire Chief Rodney A. Chipp, Superintendent of Schools Myron J. Michael, Mr. Lewis, principal of the high school, Chief of Police J. Allen Wood, the members of the Rotary and Kiwanis organizations and a host of others.

Kingston welcomes Mr. Mayer's slogan for 1923 and is bound to voice its approval during the showing of this super-production. May Mayer meet Mayor and may we have some more Mayers that believe that Kingston is ahead of Broadway. May Mayer-made movies make merry many more movielets.

PROVERBS WHICH ONE QUOTES

People Naturally Are Apt to Use Those Which Relate to Their Businesses.

Did you ever notice how provincial and self-centered the world is? Why, we can't hold an ordinary conversation without some hint of our petty business affairs entering in. The very proverbs which we affect, the very bromides of speech to which we are subject, are all directly traceable to our particular every-day pursuits.

Having always suspected this to be true, I one day set about to prove it. In my daily search for Judgelets, I made the rounds of all my friends, engaging them in pleasant colloquy.

Here's the result.

"I'm pleased to meet you," smiled the butcher.

"Sift yourself," said the tailor.

"That's right," agreed the traffic cop.

"And so forth," said the dressmaker.

"That's a dirty shame," observed the washwoman.

"Every little bit helps," philosophized the carpenter.

"That's the long and short of it," retorted the rural telegraph operator.

"Try to keep a stiff upper lip," admonished the baker.

"Yes, I need it," protested the baker.

"I'm not very well posted on that," faltered the bookkeeper.

"These words shall be my last," averred the cobbler.—Alfred Eugene Bye, in Judge.

OBJECTS TO TERM 'MASSACRE'

Author Insists That Custer's Last Fight Must Properly Be Described as a Battle.

Cyrus Townsend Brady, LL.D., in the preface of a volume on "Indian Fights and Fighters," makes a marked distinction between the terms "massacre" and "battle." He says that every time a body of troops engaged in a fight with Indians and the troops were outnumbered or caught at a disadvantage, and the battle was continued until the troops were slaughtered, such an affair was popularly called a "massacre," as for instance, "The Custer Massacre."

Mr. Brady believes this to be an unwarranted use of the term. Custer, the author points out, attacked the Indians and fought desperately until he and his men were all killed. He calls it a "battle" and not a "massacre." When an Indian war party raided a settlement or overwhelmed a train, or murdered women and children, that, he thinks, was a "massacre." The author says:

"I would like to ask if anyone ever heard of the 'Massacre of Thermopylae'?" The Greeks fought there until all save one were killed. The results there were exactly the same as those of the battle of the Little Big Horn, but I have yet to read in history that the Persians 'massacred' the Greeks in that famous pass."

Rush to Diamond Fields.

The biggest rush in the history of the Transvaal alluvial diamond diggings has taken place at Kaniplaats, 50 miles from Johannesburg. Three thousand would-be diggers flocked to the 2,100 yards long. A proclamation having been read, a Union Jack was lowered, and the long line of seekers after fortune moved off at the double over a thousand yards of green, undulating country. Young men and old, both British and Dutch, boys and women and girls, surged forward brandishing pegs. There was great excitement around the richest spot, but so vast was the diamond field that there were claims for all and to spare. Within a little while a thousand diggers had begun work with pick and shovel, and some excellent finds were made. So far, diamonds weighing 1,450 carats and valued at $68,000 have been found at Kaniplaats.

QUAKES IN BRITISH ISLES

Seismatic Disturbances Not at All Uncommon, Though They Seldom Do Much Damage.

Although not frequently reported, earthquakes are quite common in the British Isles, but rarely do sufficient damage to attract wide attention, remarks the New York Times. Near London the site of the battle of Barnet, where the famous earl of Warwick was killed, is occasionally associated with mild earth tremors, and old residents in that district have often deplored the loss of cups and saucers shaken from shelves and tables.

Some years ago Colchester, near the east coast of England, was subject to an earthquake which did considerable damage to buildings. Many persons interested in seismography visited the headquarters of the English oyster industry and reported upon the occurrence, among them the late Professor Milne, the well-known authority upon the subject, who established an earthquake recording plant on the Isle of Wight.

Professor Milne's subsequent explanation of the apparently unusual occurrence was that a considerable portion of the channel now occupied by salt water, dividing Great Britain from the continent of Europe, followed the seismic line between two volcanoes, Colchester, Harwich, Ipswich, Yarmouth and Lowestoft stand near that line, and whereas inland places may feel shocks, the east coast towns are really exposed to greater danger from subterranean disturbances.

HOUSE RICH IN TRADITIONS

Bradford Homestead, Built in 1674, Is Preserved as a Memorial of Colonial Days.

One of the oldest houses in Massachusetts and one rich in Mayflower traditions is the Maj. John Bradford homestead at Kingston, in Plymouth county, about thirty-three miles south of Boston. It was built in 1674. The land on which it stands originally was part of Governor Bradford's farm. At his death that portion of the farm passed to his son, Maj. William Bradford, for some years deputy governor of the colony, and he gave the farm to his son, John Bradford, on his marriage in 1675 to Mercy Warren, granddaughter of Richard Warren one of those on the Mayflower. The house was built for their occupancy the previous year. Maj. John Bradford and his wife lived there for 62 years and brought up a family of ten children.

The house is a large plain frame structure with deep, slanting rear roof, and recently was renovated and furnished by a community organization known as the Jones River Village club, the town of Kingston being on the Jones river. Previous to that the ancient home had been occupied by an Italian family and there was danger that this fine memorial of the Bradfords would fall into ruin. Many of the residents in Kingston contributed old furniture and the principal rooms have a typical old-fashioned Seventeenth century atmosphere.

Short-Sighted Policy.

In the southeast corner of Minnesota are situated the famous Indian "pipestone" quarries the scene of much of Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha." Years ago, says Amy Belie Emerson, in the Mentor Magazine, thousands of Indians and many tourists came yearly to the quarries—the Indians to dig the soft red stone from which peace pipes are carved, and the tourists to see the ground most sacred to the Indian. The people of the town of Pipestone have permitted blasting to be done in the quarries, and a drainage ditch to empty into Winnebago falls, says the writer. Few visit the quarries today.

Cotton growing is rapidly increasing in favor in Australia where the federal and New South Wales governments have agreed to guarantee a minimum price to growers for the forthcoming season and generally do their utmost to encourage the industry. Special attention will be given to assuring a ready market for cotton when produced. Many dairy farmers in a large area near the northern end of the coast of New South Wales propose to abandon dairying for cotton, their slogan being "Cotton before cows every time." TRIBUTE TO THE LEGION MEN

New Orleans Times-Picayune Praises Conduct of Visitors During the National Convention.

New Orleans is proud and glad to have had the opportunity to entertain the American Legion national convention and heartily congratulates San Francisco upon its capture of the honor for 1923, according to an editorial in the Times-Picayune, a leading New Orleans newspaper, printed several days after the departure of the Legionnaires.

"The Legionnaires as a body earned the good opinions of those few Orleansians who because of rumors of misdoings at Kansas City were slightly prejudiced against the gathering," the editorial states. "Throughout American Legion week good humor and good order prevailed. The rare instances of minor rowdiness or ruffianism served only as exceptions going to prove the general rule of splendid behavior and of these exceptions some, perhaps the majority, were chargeable to local hoodlums who took advantage of the Legion festivities to misbehave in the hope that their offenses would be charged to the visitors' account. In so large an assembly some impostors, crooks and evil-doers are almost invariably found but the careful work of the Legion officials and the local police simply restricted the activities of these undesirable.

"Of harmless 'high jinks' there was, of course, a joyous abundance. New Orleans, with its carnival traditions, shared in the fun of it all and rejoiced in the hilarity which testified that the lads of the Legion were having a good time. Of wanton offense and of malicious mischief, American Legion week was remarkably free. The wish expressed by the Times-Picayune last Saturday morning—that the Legionnaires would carry to their homes 'recollections of the convention as pleasant as those they leave with us'—came straight from the heart."

In a previous editorial the Times-Picayune stated:

"The American Legion convention closed yesterday afternoon will be long and pleasantly remembered by New Orleans. Accustomed as this city is to great conventions and impressive parades, the Legion assembly and the inspiring review staged last Wednesday made a distinctive appeal, an impression of sturdy Americanism and militant patriotism not soon to be effaced, and wholly favorable."

And another editorial in the same newspaper reads:

"Their visit to us will lead, as we hope, to the return of many of these stalwart young Americans, to live and grow with us."

HEAD OF LEGION AUXILIARY

Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Virginia
Woman, Originator of Idea for World Peace Body.

Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, newly elected president of the American Legion auxiliary, was one of five women sent from the United States to the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

While she was in Paris, Dr. Barrett developed the idea of an international organization of women relatives of ex-service men to service men to work for world peace.

The outgrowth of this conception is a proposal to form an auxiliary to the International Veterans' association, which was received enthusiastically by association delegates at their recent meeting in New Orleans. The international auxiliary is expected to be formed at the same time as the next Legion and auxiliary convention.

Doctor Barrett lives in Alexandria, Va., and has served as president of the auxiliary in that state. Her ancestors came to Virginia with Capt. John Smith. Doctor Barrett is serving her fourth term as state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was president of the first club organized in Virginia whose members were the mothers and wives of soldiers. This club later became the auxiliary unit of the Alexandria Legion post.

Maj. Charles Barrett, U. S. M. C., her son, was chief of staff to General Neville at Coblenz and was afterwards sent to make a survey and relief map of Chateau Thierry and Belleau Woods. This map, which is pronounced to be one of the finest works of its kind in existence, is a permanent exhibit in the rotunda of the National museum in Washington.

Helium in the Air.

Helium, the non-explosive gas used in the new United States airships, exists in the air you breathe in the proportion of one part by volume in 100,000.

ALL PROUD OF HER SUCCESS

Mrs. Joseph Fischer Directed Social Activities of Recent Auxiliary
National Meeting.

Mrs. Jos. Fischer, ties of scores of New Orleans society leaders who put their shoulders to the wheel to entertain the thousands of women visitors to the national gathering.

A daughter of the late Judge Frederick Hooker of Minneapolis, Mrs. Fischer spent the early part of her life in that city. She was educated in a private school at Washington and in the University of Minnesota. Following her marriage she went to New Orleans where she became a leader in women's clubs and social activities. She was elected vice president of the Louisiana League of Women Voters. During the war Mrs. Fischer raised a large sum of money in Louisiana for the American Red Cross. Her only son served with the American forces in Italy.

Mrs. Fischer is a lineal descendant of Fighting Joe Hooker, the famous Civil war hero.

MADE BIG MEET A SUCCESS

T. Semmes Walmsley, New Orleans, Served as General Chairman of the Convention Committee.

To T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans goes the credit for the success of the American Legion's fourth annual national convention. Mr. Walmsley was general chairman of the convention committee.

Mr. Walmsley was educated in the public schools of New Orleans and Spring Hill college at Mobile, Ala., and was graduated from the law school at Tulane university. He played on 14 varsity teams, was captain of the football and track teams and hung up a record as Southern Athletic association quarter-mile runner.

Commissioned a captain at the Leon Springs officers' training camp at Leon, Tex., Mr. Walmsley remained there as instructor until December 23, 1917, when he was detailed to take charge of the first training battalion at Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex. In April, 1918, he was placed in command of the Forty-sixth aerial squadron and sent to Ellington field at Houston, Tex., for bombing instruction. From Ellington field he took his squadron to Mineola, L. I., and built the first hangars on President Roosevelt field.

He has been state hospitalization officer since his term of office expired as national committeeman. Nominated for the office of national commander, Mr. Walmsley withdrew his name on the convention floor because he felt that New Orleans had already been honored sufficiently in being the host city to the convention.

PLANNED THE OLYMPIC MEET

James Murphy, Iowa, Legion's National Athletic Commission Chairman, Arranged Big Program.

As chairman of the American Legion's national athletic commission, James R. Murphy of Iowa planned the recent Olympic meet at New Orleans, in which ex-service athletes from all parts of the country competed in track and field events, amateur boxing and wrestling, aquatic sports, golf and tennis tournaments and marksmanship contests.

Hanford MacNider, past national commander of the Legion, appointed Mr. Murphy chairman of the commission last June when the national executive committee authorized the formation of the athletic body.

Mr. Murphy was a distinguished all-around athlete during the years 1911-1913, while attending the University of Iowa. He was captain of Iowa's football team. After leaving college he continued athletic activities until the beginning of the World war, when he was made a captain in the Fourth division and served overseas with that organization.

The Legion's attention was first drawn to athletics when Provost Marshal Crowder's report on the physical condition of the men who were drafted for the service was made public. The report indicated that less than one-third of the men drafted were actually fit for military service.

MILK-MARKETING PLANT PROBLEMS

Bulletin Recently Issued by Department of Agriculture Outlines All Details.

LIST OF EQUIPMENT NEEDED

Manager Must Secure Adequate and Proper Milk Supply, Efficient and Economical Operation and Sales Methods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Persons who are interested in the establishment of co-operative milk-marketing plants as well as those already engaged in marketing milk co-operatively will find many of their problems handled exhaustively in Department Bulletin 1095, Producers' Co-operative Milk-Distributing Plants, just published by the United States Department of Agriculture. The bulletin, consisting of more than 40 pages, is based upon studies of the experience of a large number of plants of this type in various parts of the country, mostly in small cities where a satisfactory system of distribution was not previously developed. Details are given on contracts, financing, organization, by-laws, location and equipment of plants, investment, management, sales methods, distribution costs, and accounting systems.

Equipment Needed.
Lists are given of equipment needed for small plants with less than 250 gallons capacity, for plants to handle from 250 to 1,000 gallons, and for large plants handling more than 1,000 gallons a day. Figures obtained from

A Milk Distributing Plant.

27 co-operative plants show that the average investment in the plant itself per gallon capacity is $25.97 when the capacity is 500 gallons or less; $22.77 when the capacity is from 500 to 1,000 gallons; $11.69 when the capacity is 1,000 to 2,000 gallons; and $19.14 when the capacity is from 2,000 to 8,000 gallons. In the same order, the investments per gallon capacity in equipment were $28.73, $31.70, $11.80, and $12.24. Estimates are given of the total amounts of money needed to establish and operate plants of these various capacities.

The three principal problems that confront the milk plant manager are, according to the bulletin, the securing of an adequate and proper milk supply, efficient and economical plant operation, and sales policies and methods of market distribution.

Copies of the bulletin may be obtained by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

KEEP PUMPKINS ALL WINTER

Only Well-Ripened Specimens With Thick Rinds Should Be Stored—Keep Them Dry.

It isn't so very difficult to keep pumpkins, squash, etc., all winter if they are stored properly. Of course, only well-ripened pumpkins or squash, with thick rinds, and which are well colored, should be stored. They should be gathered carefully before hard frost. Any that are injured in gathering or otherwise should be discarded, and only the perfect specimens retained. Be sure to leave the stems on all the pumpkins. The ideal storage place is a dry room or dry basement where the temperature will average around 65 degrees or above. Place the pumpkins or squash on shelves, or at least keep them off of concrete floors or other places where there may be too much moisture. Do not pile them up, but keep the individual pumpkins separated from each other. With such care either pumpkins or squash should keep several months.

COFFEY-CROSS GO SHOULD BE CORKER

Al Cross, "the fighting doughboy of Syracuse," who battles Vince Coffey, the sensational Kingston welterweight, in the main event of 121 rounds at the Knick Arena in Albany next Tuesday night, is one of the ring's most unique characters. Cross, or "Al," as he is called by an army of friends in Syracuse, is more like a college student than a fighter, yet he boasts of one of the best records ever compiled by a welterweight in this state.

Cross gets the "doughboy" moniker because of his service in France with a regular army outfit. Eighteen months overseas gave him as much of the war as he ever wanted to see. Cross says, and he saw action in six offensives. He was gassed and slightly wounded and has one of the best records of any soldier in Syracuse. He is 23 years old and has been fighting for about three years, or since he came home from service, to be exact. He learned fighting in the army, his ring debut being made in khaki, and he liked the game from the start. Wanting to follow it up, he placed his destinies in the hands of Joe Netto, popular Syracuse light manager, and Netto has guided him through wins over the following: Jack Thomas, Nate Lewis, Harry Pieco, Mike Dempsey, Bobby Sullivan, Johnny Paske, Frankie Vencall, Ralph Schappert, Frankie Ryan, Young Nelson, George Shade, Johnny Herman, Jack McFarland, Charlie Pitts, Nate Selgal and Frankie Nelson. He has scored 38 knockouts and in the fight with George Shade, who outweighed him 12 pounds, Cross made the veteran middleweight take cover time and again. The fight between Cross and Coffey should be a corker, as Coffey is going great guns at present and seems destined to jump into the front rank of welters before long.

LOCALS INCREASE LEAGUE LEAD

By Defeating Albany Wednesday Night at Local Armory Court—First Half Honors Sure to Come Here—C. Husta Gets Scoring Honors.

The Kingston team of the New York State Basketball League won a fast game from Albany at the armory court Wednesday evening by a 31 to 15 count, thereby practically clinching the pennant for the first half of the championship race. The local representatives proved themselves true league leaders and also proved to the entire satisfaction of the fans that they are worthy of being decorated with the new orange and black suits and sweaters, which certainly present a fine appearance. Although the Senators were handicapped somewhat by having Manager Bill Heppinstal playing a forward position, they worked very good and did a great deal of fighting.

Honey Russel again played Borgman, this time doing somewhat better than on previous occasions as Borgman only succeeded in making six out of the thirty-one points scored by the Kingston team. Friedman opposed, rather than C. Husta so much that the referee penalized the former ten times during the evening's proceedings. Husta made good five of these free throws and also added two fields to his credit, which brought his total score up to nine points and gave him the scoring honors for the game.

C. Powers and Riconda were pitted against each other and as neither are of the docile type, an enjoyable evening was had by both. The fans also would get in what might be termed a lullable mood. Riconda annexed eight points while Charlie rang up four for his total. Knoblach had an easy time playing Conway at center as did Harry with Heppinstal. Nick is being led lately and he sure has a good eye. Instead of Heppinstal being guarded by him, it was Heppinstal who was guarding Nick for a good part of the contest. Heppinstal was handled rather roughly throughout the contest and on several occasions was lacking in the required amount of wind. It is impossible for any team to win a game by playing rough throughout and a little of this kind of work goes a good ways.

Jack Murray refereed the struggle and his work was of the highest order. The game was decidedly rough but it was also fast with skillful floor work and passing playing an important part in the victory. Riconda and Husta fouled in a clutch near the close of the game and some of the fans becoming excited proceeded to leave their seats and as a result the Albany players were escorted from the net by policemen. However nothing but a few remarks were passed. Out of twenty-four times from the free gift line the locals let one shot of making good half of those times. Ten were made from the playground making a total of 21. Albany exacted eight out of twenty from the penalty line which with four field baskets made a total of 16. M. Husta replaced C. Powers during the last few minutes of play.

C. Husta singled starting the contest and was quickly followed by C. Powers who also made good from the penalty line. C. Husta again scored a one pointer. Riconda scored first for the visitors making good from the free gift line and in double quick time he also scored the first field basket of the contest, making the score three all. Both teams were fresh for the first eight minutes and a number of good shots were missed. Knoblach sank a field at this time as did Manager Heppinstal again tying the score this time at five all. From this time on the home team sported and never stopped until the last period closed. The first half wound up with the orange and black boys in front of a 16 to 6 score.

Albany came back strong in the second half and made a great effort to overcome the lead of the local team but all was in vain as their work seemed to be lacking.
